TORONTO, April 4, 2017 - For a second year in a row, the Planet in Focus Environmental Film Festival (PiF) is thrilled to be a part of the Green Living Show, which will be taking place April 7 to 9 at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre's North Building.

Expanding on its role at the event, PiF will not only have a booth at the show (#1527), but will also present a selection of FREE screenings consisting of six film festival favourites on April 8 and 9 at Room 203, part of the Festival's Mixed Greens seasonal screenings.

Saturday April 8

1:00 PM - The Water Brothers: ON THIN ICE

Alex & Tyler Mifflin, Canada (2016)

A look at the effects of climate change on Canada's vast freshwater resources and the ecosystems they support.

4:00 PM - 10 Billion: What's on Your Plate

Valentin Thurn, Germany (2015)

With the World's population expected to exceed 10 billion within the 21st century, award-winning journalist Thurn offers an absorbing vision of the future of sustainable food.

6:00 PM - Ever the Land

Sarah Grohnert, New Zealand (2016)

A portrait of one of New Zealand's most passionately independent Maori tribes, this film of rich cultural insight captures a moment of reconciliation and renewed hope.

Sunday April 9

2:00 PM - Bugs on the Menu

Ian Toews, Canada (2016)

As restaurants, farmers, scholars, and scientists seek to normalize insect eating in the west, this doc examines bug eating traditions in South Africa, Mexico, and Cambodia.

3:45 PM - The Edible Indian

Cass Gardiner, Canada

Director Gardiner (Algonquin/Anishinabe) offers a short glimpse into the long history of ceremony, food and its role in indigenous identity.

4:30 PM - Theater of Life

Peter Svatek, Canada (2016)

Winner of PiF's 2016 Best Canadian Feature Award, this doc follows renowned culinary artist Massimo Bottura as he, and other Award-winning chefs, create a truly exceptional soup kitchen.
